

Hall County Employees, Volunteers Hold Signs to Raise Funds For Animal Shelter

December 27, 2012

The Hall County Animal Shelter received $1,050 after Hall County Government employees and volunteers stood out in the cold last week and advertised free coffee at three RaceTrac stores in the area.

RaceTrac officials promised to donate $350 toward the shelter for every store that had volunteers holding signs near the roadway between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. each morning.

Volunteers from Hall County Government included Trey Garcia, Casey Charlton, Mike Little, Melissa McCain, Billy Powell, Nancy Nash, Roz Schmitt, David Nix, Jeremy Frazier and Cindy Langman.

Friends and family members of Hall County Government employees also participated. They include Rachel Langman, Wes Wesley, Heather Taylor, James and Peggy Baxley, Teresa Glazer and Susan Brewster, among others.

The Hall County Animal Shelter is a nonprofit shelter. Generous donations are appreciated and used to provide the best care for Hall County's unwanted pets.

Items such as bath towels, dish towels, laundry detergent, cat litter, newspaper, and dry dog, puppy, cat and kitten food are needed.
