

Local Artist Partners With Hall Co. Animal Shelter To Raise Funds

10/31/2014

A local artist is partnering with the Hall County Animal Shelter to help raise funds for the organization.

For a small fee, Beth Henson is painting murals of people's pets on the inside walls of the Hall County Animal Shelter. Proceeds from the paintings go toward the shelter's adoption programs.

"My goal is to create a timeless celebration of our community's beloved animals," Henson said. "They add a unique joy and richness to our lives, and this mural will honor our four-legged family members, as well as greatly benefit the Hall County Animal Shelter."

Both the owner's name and the pet's name will be included in the mural. Paintings can be made of current pets or as a memorial tribute.

"This is a great way to give back and honor the four-legged friends who mean so much to all of us," said Cindy Langman, program coordinator with the Hall County Animal Shelter.
